

June 25, 2018

The Honorable Tom Wolf Governor,
Office of the Governor
508 Main Capitol Building
Harrisburg, PA 17120

RE: HB 1898 – Auto Safety Recalls – Request for Veto

Dear Governor Wolf:

The Center for Auto Safety writes today to express serious concern regarding the consequences of House Bill (HB) 1898. The Center, co-founded in 1970 by Ralph Nader and Consumers Union, is an independent, non-profit consumer advocacy organization dedicated to improving vehicle safety, quality, and fuel economy not only for our members, but all drivers, passengers, and pedestrians across the county. Despite the significant dangers presented by recalled cars and trucks, HB 1898 includes a provision to allow dealers to sell used cars with unrepaired recalls. The bill does not require the recalls be remedied, no matter how deadly, but merely that a consumer be notified about the unrepaired defect instead of fixing it.

Why would any state encourage such behavior?

This bill's timing could not be worse when it comes to consumer safety. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has recently recorded multiple years of record numbers of recalls, including over 50 million in 2015 and 2016, each. Today, according to most estimates, there are close to 60 million unrepaired recalled cars in the U.S. These recalls include vehicles with exploding Takata airbag inflators which have resulted in at least 23 deaths worldwide, GM ignition switch failures which have resulted in at least 170 deaths in the U.S., and hundreds of other less-publicized defects posing significant threats to public safety.

A pillar of federal and state recall authority is the ability to remove unsafe products from the stream of commerce. For example, it is illegal to sell recalled food, recalled pharmaceuticals, or recalled children's toys. Federal law currently prohibits the sale of new vehicles subject to an unrepaired recall. It is also illegal for rental car companies to rent a vehicle with unrepaired recalls. Conversely, HB 1898 paves the way for defective and dangerous products to be unleashed onto Pennsylvania roads. Unlike many other products, a defective automobile is especially dangerous because the risks are not limited to the direct consumer, but to all persons on the road. Drivers, passengers, and pedestrians in Pennsylvania would thus be subjected to unnecessary risks by this bill.

Twice as many used cars as new cars are sold every year in the United States. Critically, Pennsylvanians with limited economic resources are the most likely purchasers of used cars. It is illogical to encourage the sale of a dangerous car to those in the absolute worst position to have the time to get these repairs. Rather, Pennsylvania should insist that dealers, who can repair recalled vehicles at no cost because recall repairs are free of charge under federal law, are required to ensure that their used cars are in a safe condition prior to sale.

The purchase of a second-hand car should not mean that the buyer, and everyone else on the road, deserves second rate safety protections.

Thank you for your consideration,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Jason Levine', is written in a cursive style.

Jason Levine
Executive Director, Center for Auto Safety