White Collar Investigations & Defense

We have handled scores of class action cases in state and federal courts, involving a wide variety of claims and subject areas, including technology, consumer goods, real estate, and food products. We have defended clients facing a broad array of class claims, including matters alleging unfair competition, false advertising, breach of contract and warranty, violation of the Consumers Legal Remedies Act and Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act, and strict liability.

Class actions present different risks and a different legal landscape than other litigation matters. We have both the subject matter and procedural expertise to handle these matters. Among other things, one of our founding partners previously was the co-chair of a national law firm's class action practice group.
